

LOCALS

There will be at least 15 mail routes established on Maui.

Col. W. H. Cornwell returned to Maui on Tuesday's Kilauea.

Attorney Coke returned to Maui on the Mauna Loa, last night.

Orders for job work promptly and neatly executed at the News office.

George Trimble, Deputy Sheriff of Molokai, spent the week on Maui and became an American citizen.

Lloyd M. Robbins, assistant to the Attorney General, left for Japan last Saturday, leaving a tale behind him.

The Board of Registration will be at Spreckelsville today, at Kilauea on Monday and at Wailuku on Tuesday.

Bishop Willis, assisted by Rev. W. Ault, will conduct services at the Anglican Church in Wailuku tomorrow at 11 o'clock, A. M.

Variegated weather at Wailuku is week, with alternated sunshine & showers, but the nights are deliciously cool and refreshing.

The suggestion of a bakery for Wailuku seems a very popular one, both letters and telephone messages having reached this office, approving the idea.

Travel is constantly increasing on Maui and the hackman are reaping a rich harvest. The tourist proper will begin to arrive, "when the frost is on the pumpkin".

Mr. George Cummings is acting as deputy clerk of the Circuit Court during the absence of Mr. Keola, who is a member of the Board of Registration for this district.

Arthur Waal, the postmaster of Lahaina, came over to Wailuku on Monday last, and after a short interview with Judge Kahua, announced himself to be an American citizen of the deepest dye.

NOTICE—All those who have any books belonging to the Makawao Book Club, received by them previous to September, 1900, are requested to send them to

MRS. W. S. NICOLL
Hamakunipoko Maui.

See the ad. of the Paila Plantation Store on the first page. It is rather a modest ad. and does not say much, but it really means just what it does say, as those who have traded with this popular store have found out, to their financial advantage.

Judge J. W. Kahua returned from Molokai and opened Circuit Court at Wailuku on Monday morning for the purpose of naturalizing citizens. For several days the Court was kept quite busy. 43 applicants, steered by the skillful hand of Attorney George Hons, sailed serenely into harbor of American citizenship.

Mrs. R. W. Filler, accompanied by the young assistant superintendent of the K. R. R. Co., spent the day visiting in Wailuku last Tuesday. The young gentleman informed a News reporter that he now kicks the beam at twenty pounds, but that within three months more he expected to double his weight.

Mr. Gilson and Mr. House, prominent sugar growers of Queensland, Australia, are visiting Maui to inspect irrigation methods on our sugar plantation. Mr. Gilson states that cane is not irrigated at Queensland, and that the average yield per acre is about 41 tons per acre. He thinks that by irrigation and proper fertilization, the yield per acre may be doubled.

Attorney Tavares of Makawao was in Wailuku on Thursday, assisting a number of his Portuguese friends to become good Americans. Mr. Tavares states that there is a large number of Portuguese who would take out naturalization papers, were it not that they fear that by becoming citizens they would be drafted into the army and sent to fight the Chinese and Filipinos.

Mr. F. W. Drake, deputy collector of U. S. internal revenue, is on Maui looking up the interests of his department. Through his efforts, some Japanese who were dealing in illicit liquor traffic at Lahaina were arrested by the local authorities, tried and convicted. They will also be tried by the United States District Court for the infringement on the internal revenue laws, and the punishment for such offences is generally much more severe in the U. S. District Courts than in our local courts.

A MAUI WEDDING.

On Saturday evening last Miss Mary Keanu was married to Mr. Cyrus Green, at the residence of Mr. J. K. Kahookole, at Nehe, Wailuku.

A large number of invited guests were present, and at 7:30 the bridal party took their places under a beautifully grouped combination of American and Hawaiian flags, where the sacrament of marriage was solemnly and impressively administered by Father Lebert.

A host of friends tendered their congratulations to the happy couple, after which the guests were invited to an elaborately prepared luau. Mr. Kahookole and his wife are charming hosts, and the table fairly groaned with its load of good things, so daintily cooked in Hawaiian style, that even the haole were enthusiastic. Twining wreaths of ferns and flowers, interspersed with Chinese lanterns gave a fairylike effect to the scene, and the charm was heightened by the mellow voices of a group of Hawaiians who chanted a number of sweet Hawaiian songs during the progress of the luau. "And they lived happily ever afterwards".

A "Presidential" Office.

The postoffice at Lahaina will probably be made a "presidential" office, that is, one for which the postmaster is appointed by the president, recommendations to that effect having been made by the postal inspectors who recently visited the Islands.

There is a large volume of business transacted through the Lahaina office, the money order receipts being from $12,000 to $15,000 per month. Mr. Arthur Waal, the present postmaster will receive the presidential appointment, as he has proved a very efficient postmaster. It has been a cardinal principle with him to distribute mails immediately upon their arrival at Lahaina, either by day or night. He has also won the gratitude of the Wailukans by his promptness in dispatching mail to the other portions of the Island.

It is probable that Wailuku will also soon reach a volume of business which will entitle it to a "Presidential" office, with increased pay and an extra allowance for clerk hire.

The Maui Telephone Company.

Maui has a telephone system that is unexcelled anywhere. Since the arrival of the new telephones and the establishment of the new central switchboards, a degree of almost perfection has been attained in telephone service.

There has been an increase of over 60 subscribers in the last few months, the total number now being 365. A new subscribers' list has been made out and is now in the hands of the publishers. It will be issued shortly. Some mistakes have been made in assigning numbers to new subscribers, consequently all new subscribers above No. 280 will do well to consult their new calendars, in order to note the changes which it was necessary to make.

Mr. E. B. Carley, the energetic superintendent is noted for giving his personal attention to every detail of the system, and it is his ambition to place at least 500 subscribers on his next year's calendar.

CRUSHED.

Kahului, Sept. 28,
Editor MAUI NEWS:—

I was, a few days ago, showing a visitor round our little seaport, pointing out to him the various improvements already made and explaining those contemplated.

Suddenly he asked me a question which sent a cold chill through me. His query was, "What are those two shabby looking buildings, standing next to each other? Did the fire blacken them like that?" As I hesitated to reply, he added a further question, "Perhaps they were the pest houses during the plague." Well, sir, I had finally to inform him that they represented the church and the school, and he gave me a look which effectually shut off my enthusiasm about new Kahului, and I hastened to change the subject. Truly yours,
CRUSHED.

Lahaina Lines.

Deputy Sheriff Lindsey made a big haul of illicit liquor sellers last week. Eight of these cases have already been tried, resulting in the conviction of four of them, with fines fixed at $100 each, with costs. From the amount of the forbidden fluid captured, one would imagine that they had been using it for bathing purposes.

Mr. Fred Hayselden says that he is a candidate for the legislature on the Democratic ticket, but he has not begun to electioneer yet. When Kikaha swoops down, he is liable to rise with a few native votes in his talons.

"Oleaginous William", visited Wailuku Wednesday and returned Thursday, wearing an imported jag. A party of shark fishers went out to fish last Sunday at Napili, but the sharks at that point were not of the hippophagous variety, and would not take the bait. After smashing a few dozen recently emptied beer bottles at 60 yards, off hand, the party were invited to dinner with the Raimond brothers, who maintained their well established reputation for hospitality.

Lahaina has 299 registered voters, including 87 at Honokowai.

W. G. Scott, the popular manager of Macfarlane & Co.'s wholesale liquor house and saloon in Wailuku visited Lahaina on Thursday, returning to Wailuku Friday morning.

The steamer Waiakaloa touched at Lahaina on Thursday evening at six, en route to Honolulu with Prince David on board. The Iao Stables have lost one of the magnificent span of black horses recently purchased by them from Cyrus Green. The horses were driven to Lahaina as a stage team on Thursday, and shortly after reaching there one of them died from exhaustion.

Death of Thomas Sunny.

Mr. Thomas Sunny, a mining engineer, died at Makawao on Sunday evening last. Mr. Sunny came to Maui some months since from California to take charge of the drifting and tunneling operations at Kihel. He had practically completed his work, and was superintending the finishing of the pits in which the pumps are to be set. He was taken sick some three weeks since, but his anxiety to complete his work impelled him to be out, when he should really have been in bed. Finally he became so ill that he was taken to Makawao, and on Thursday last his friends lost all hopes of his recovery.

Mr. Sunny stood very high in his profession, and his loss will be seriously felt. He leaves a wife and a child, who will return to the Coast at once. He was about 41 years old.

POLITICS.

The republicans are putting up a strong fight on Maui, and a winning one, so far as some at least of their candidates are concerned.

They opened the campaign with a political meeting at Paila on Friday night, a week ago, at which George Hons, Hon. A. N. Kepoikali, Hon. H. P. Baldwin, Judge Kahokuoluna and others spoke. The next night, at Spreckelsville, addresses were made by Mr. Hons, Judge Kepoikali, Mr. Lowrie, Mr. Vandernailen and others. On Monday night, an enthusiastic meeting was held at Hamakunipoko, at which some of the above speakers and also J. M. Kaneakua, C. H. Dickey and Henry Long expounded republican doctrine. The same speakers addressed a large audience at Pauwela on Tuesday night.

On Wednesday, Enoch Johnson, Rev. S. Kapu and L. W. P. Kaneakua came from Honolulu and went directly to Hana, accompanied from Kahului by Hon. A. N. Kepoikali and J. M. Kaneakua. They returned on Friday.

This evening, a grand republican rally will be held at the Skating Rink in Wailuku. On next Monday night, the Democratic Territorial Convention will meet at Honolulu. A platform will be adopted, some of the planks of which will be to compensate the ex-queen, to provide for the plague sufferers, and to provide a municipal government for each of the Islands.

On next Friday night, Prince David, John H. Wise and other dem.

ocratic speakers will arrive on Maui, and on the Monday following, will be a stamping campaign on Maui.

On Wednesday evening, William White of Lahaina, accompanied by D. Kalaokalani and C. B. Cockett, came over to Wailuku to interview Mr. S. E. Kaine relative to his action in accepting the nomination as representative on the independent-democratic ticket, and urged him to return to his first love. It is understood that Mr. Kaine declined to run for senator on the independent ticket, preferring his chances as representative on the combination ticket.

On the return of the Aie to Lahaina, a new deal was made by which C. B. Cockett is to be placed on the senatorial ticket in the stead of Kaine, and D. K. Kahaulelio of Lahaina is to be named as representative in Cockett's stead.
